Interference No. 87,047

Allison

v.

Rogallo and Rogallo

In the preliminary statement of Allison it is alleged that an experimental model embodying the subject matter in issue was successfully tested. This allegation is unacceptable for a reduction to practice. In order to constitute a reduction to practice it is necessary that a full-sized device embodying the invention in issue be successfully tested. Allison should supply the date on which the invention in issue was first reduced to practice.

An amended statement, limited to the curing of the aforementioned defect, should be filed on or before October 4, 1954.

For failure so to amend, Allison will be restricted to his record date for reduction to practice.
